

An all-season feel-good cosmos

What began with a "Stübli" (a cosy parlour) for a new villa in Luxembourg became a holistic design concept. A truly distinctive space was created according to the vision of the design team who worked with the motif of the "Four Seasons". Warm and cosy in autumn and winter, and minimalist in spring and summer, this building benefits all year round from the individually selected materials and design details specially developed for the project. There is a truly unique "Art de Vivre" that can be felt as soon as you step into the impressive entrance.

Endless hours of loving and meticulous craftsmanship went into this unique project: each wooden table was made in Bernd Gruber's own factory. The fine metal frames that edge the smoothed kitchen fronts create a special stylistic element. Despite the characteristic wood panelling, the overall impression is typified by restraint and consideration of what is essential: this results in an expression of a unique sense of life emanating from the curated composition of the fine furniture, the artworks and the decorative elements. The many glass surfaces and open rooms, in combination with the cosy design, make this house a feel-good cosmos that lives in harmony with the seasons.

www.bernd-gruber.at

Photography: Alexander van Berge / Styling: Bregje Nix

Natural stone, woodwork and accessories are kept in matching natural tones.

Reduction to what is essential can also be seen in the spa.

Elaborate natural stonework (in Travertine Silver) makes the bathroom unique.

